

I find it demeaning, demoralizing and reprehensible that this story has been covered up since its inception, when the passage of this bill could have such huge consequences for the country. The reason we had laws in place regarding who can own what and how much was because of problems that media monopolies caused in the 1940s. In the intervening years the only thing that has changed is the rapidity with which people can transmit and receive information. Therefore I believe that this will cause more harm, more quickly than would have been imagineable in the 1940s. In most cases I am sympathetic to the civil libertarian view that we needed to be protected from government more than by the government, but in this case I believe that is irresponsible to allow a small group of people to control what information is received by the general public. When this law is passed, I plan on spending my time campaigning for its repeal. And to any congressmen and senators out there who vote for the bill, just know, you will not be getting my support in any election to come.

Have a nice day.

Lucas Weismann